Taking Stock at Year-End . . . and Giving It

From the desk of Mary Jane Auns...

Have you ever considered making a gift of appreciated stock to the Bailey Public Library? It may be better for you than making a gift of cash. To learn more about this, you may want to talk with your CPA and investment advisor.

Many people own appreciated stock – stock that has risen in value over time. For example, Jane Smith has a stock account with a well-known brokerage company. One of her stocks has grown from $15 a share to $75 a share over the past few years. If she asked her broker to sell the stock she would owe tax on the $60 of appreciation for each share that was sold.

However, if Jane gave the stock to the 501(c)(3) Winthrop Public Library Foundation, she would avoid this tax on the appreciation and receive, instead, an income tax deduction on the full value of the stock.

What's more, because the Winthrop Public Library Foundation is a qualified charitable organization, it could sell the stock and avoid any tax on the appreciation. A win for Jane; a win for the Bailey Library.

Historically, year-end is a popular time for making stock gifts. In fact, most stock gifts occur during the fourth quarter of the year. Many thoughtful donors review their stock portfolio and select those stocks which have appreciated the most and which have been held for more than a year. These donors give stock instead of cash because they have discovered the value, and enjoyment, of stretching their giving power by giving the appreciation.
