NYT BEST SELLING AUTHOR TO APPEAR AT BAILEY

Melissa Coleman will discuss her new book, "This Life Is in Your Hands" at 6:30pm Tuesday, October 11.

In the fall of 1968, Melissa Coleman's parents, Eliot and Sue—a handsome, idealistic young couple from well-to-do families—pack a few essentials into their VW bus and abandon the complications of modern existence to carve a farm from the woods. They move to a remote peninsula on the coast of Maine and become disciples of Helen and Scott Nearing, authors of the homesteading bible Living the Good Life. On sixty acres of sandy, intractable land they begin to forge a new existence, subsisting on the crops they grow and building a home with their own hands. The New York Times described the book as "intensely readable," "haunting" with "lush, vivid atmosphere."

An Indie Next pick, "This Life Is in Your Hands" was excerpted in Oprah Magazine, and has been reviewed in the New York Times and New York Times Book Review, Marie Claire, NPR, Los Angeles Times, Boston Globe, and was a People's Pick in People Magazine. The book was also on the NYT bestseller list in May of this year.

Melissa is a columnist for Maine and Maine Home and Design magazines and serves on the board of the Telling Room, a Portland writing center for kids. She lives in Freeport, Maine, with her husband and twin daughters.

Copies of the book will be available for purchase and signing at the event through Apple Valley Books. The free discussion will begin at 6:30pm. For more information, call 377-8673.

WEE READ Reviews for the young and the young at heart. by Ann Darby

Bugs and Bugsicles
Written by Amy S. Hansen
Illustrations by Robert C. Kray

Have you ever asked yourself where bugs go in the winter? A question asked by many curious generations.

Here is a book that answers our question and explains how many common insects get through the winter, to come back to our yards in the spring. A great book to be read to the youngest of naturalists, and certain to be enjoyed by all ages.
